How the avg to avg figure is calculated:

The January through December numbers are "price indices." Adding the Jan through Dec indices for a year and dividing by 12 gives the annual average price index
Subtracting the previous year's average price index from the current year's average price index dividing by the previous year's price index equals the percent change (avg to avg)
E.g.

	Ann. Avg.
2007	207.342		2008 annual average	215.303
2008	215.303		2007 annual average	-207.342
				7.961	/	207.342 = 3.8

If BOR were using the FY averages instead of Sep-Sep change, the calculation would be:
